

Dr. Paul Powers

• Management Psychologist & Consultant • Executive / Career / Retirement Coach • Career Expert / Author • Public Speaker
(941) 681-2304 • drpaul@drpaulpowers.com • www.drpaulpowers.com

FINANCIAL RESOURCES (Revised 01/14)

To develop your financial literacy and investor savvy try the following books. They are geared to the ordinary person, not finance professionals. They are full of common-sense, quite accessible and even enjoyable.

BOOKS:

The Millionaire in You: Michael LeBoef
(New York: Crown Business, 2002).

The Millionaire Next Door: T. Stanley & W. Danko
(Taylor Trade Publishing, 2010).

The Wealthy Barber: D. Chilton
(Three Rivers Press, 1997).

Your Money, The Missing Manual: J.D. Roth
(O'Reilly Media, 2010)

Protecting Your Wealth in Good Times and Bad: Richard A. Ferri
(New York: McGraw Hill, 2003).

The Coffeehouse Investor: Bill Shulthesis
(Kirkland, WA: Palouse Press, 2005)

The Informed Investor: Frank Armstrong III
(New York: American Management Association, 2003).

The Four Pillars of Investing: Bill Bernstein
(New York: McGraw Hill, 2002)

Common Sense on Mutual Funds: John Bogle
(New York: Wiley, 1999).

The Busy Family's Guide to Money: Sandra Bloch
(Nolo, 2008)